Customer Segments: Who needs your value proposition

Your goal is to enter into a strategic partnership with your most innovative stakeholders.

By partnering with your most innovative stakeholders, you are ensuring strategic leadership for your business.

You will select the strategic stakeholders according to the following criteria:

1. Dynamic sector (mobility, robotics, environment, healthcare)
2. Market leader in the sector
3. Long-term, successful relationships between your company and the key people of the selected future strategic partner.

Value Proposition: How we provide value

Their value proposition is to guarantee the optimization of the entire supply chain process.

This measure ensures the lowest total cost of ownership of the entire supply chain.

You will set up a program with your strategic partners to achieve this challenging goal.

Channels: How we deliver value to our target clients effectively

The most effective channel to demonstrate your competence to the target people is to organize a strategic meeting.

You'll present a business case that reflects the current situation of the company and demonstrates the improved cash flow (short term and medium term) through the proposed measures.

Customer Relationships: How we interact

If you want to optimize the total cost of ownership of the entire supply chain across companies.

It is necessary to set up a program in which both partner companies are represented by the top management as a steering group. The program management is carried out by experienced key account managers.

Revenue: How we capture value

The goal is to save the TCO of the entire supply chain. The savings will be split between the partners 50:50.

This is a fair measure that prevents lengthy discussions and negotiations that unnecessarily slow down the process.

Key Resources: How we manage our value delivery

The key asset is your program: Optimizing the TCO of the Entire Supply Chain.

This program is your strategic asset that brings your business into the partnership.

Key Activities: How we create value

The most important activity is the establishment of strategic partnership with your key stakeholders.

This measure secures the long-term stakeholder value.

By demonstrating the specific value of the program: Optimizing the Total Cost of Ownership of the Entire Supply Chain in a strategic meeting to the prospective partner.

Key Partners: Who helps us

RapidKnowHow offers the program: Establishing a strategic partnership with your most innovative stakeholders.

We can help your key people select the most innovative stakeholders, prepare the presentation of your program, and help them implement it.

Costs: What we spend

The out of pocket costs for you are the one-time license fee for the program as well as the consulting costs for the coaching of your employees.

Now you can start your activity.

You can use our practical guide to discuss this strategic opportunity with your top management colleagues.
